Bosnia and Herzegovina is a self-sufficient, net exporter of electricity. However, its energy sector relies mostly on fossil fuels, in addition to hydro and a negligible level of renewables. Bosnia and Herzegovina is well endowed with renewable energy resource potential; however, the sector is still in its initial stage of development.

It should be noted that both projects in Bosnia and Herzegovina showed very high cost-effectiveness; these projects naturally require more investments than wind power projects for example. Nevertheless, the average annual reduction in CO<sub>2</sub> emissions is also quite high, which made them more environmentally friendly.
