

What is the tax regime for the BES islands?

On January 1, 2011 the Netherlands introduced a tax regime for the BES Islands which is different from the regime in the Netherlands, by introducing a flat-tax regime and a 0% profits tax regime.

Are there tax treaties with the BES islands?

Yes, there are. Because of the 0% tax rate it is not advantageous for other countries to close a tax treaty with the BES islands. In order to stimulate the economy, tax treaties are very important for increasing business traffick between countries. For example The Netherlands has approx. 90 tax treaties!

Are the BES islands a part of the European Union?

The BES islands are not a part of the European Union, so that legislation is not applicable for the BES Islands.

Do companies have to pay profit-tax in the BES islands?

Furthermore companies will not have to pay profit-tax. The tax rate for profits out of business is set at 0%. However dividends are still bound to a tax rate of 5%. One of the reasons for the introduction of the flat-tax regime is because the tax burden was on the high side for the BES Islands residents and entrepreneurs.

Is there a duty exemption for BES islands?

Of course that situation has crossed the minds and in line with stimulating and increasing the economic activities there is made a small exemption or rather a small part of the European Union legislation is made applicable to the BES Islands: no duties to be paid on goods produced on the BES Islands and which are exported to the European Union.

What is the difference between income in the BES islands?

Answers: According to circumstances on the BES Islands it appears that the difference between the income of its residents is not that big. The BES islands are thinly populated - approx. 20.000 people, the income distribution is not so great and there are only a few high incomes.
