

Norfolk Island has "too much solar, now it wants storage April 5, 2017 by Giles Parkinson Leave a Comment Norfolk Island, the former penal colony and now tourist destination located nearly 1,500km off the east coast of Australia, is calling for proposals for energy storage to maximise its use of solar PV, minimise a growing "solar debt ...

I'd love to see the Smart Storage Bin and the Refrigerator updated with high/low threshold settings a la the Smart Battery for the auto output instead of the single full/not full setting they have now. It'd make it easier to implement various automation schemes. On a similar note, I'd also like S...

So as of the latest patch, Smart Storage now actually consumes power. This actually makes it one of the worst power consumers as it is always on, so you get a power draw of 36kJ per day. I quickly figured that by linking a clock sensor and a power shutoff to the same automation circuit you can leave the bin unpowered for most of the day and ...

So the storage method you're using breaks one of the game's basic functions. Using this method, you have to accept the permanent loss of the Tidy ability. Your setup also has another flaw: It chews up significant power (and generates a lot ...

I've looked at the smart storage bin and had the settings to take in specific resources, and attached it with automation wire to a refiner. But it's red and can't figure out how to make it ...

No matter how I tweak the storage bin settings, dupes are travelling all over the map in order to store things into random bins. It seems like there would have to be a special combination of dupe storage priority, bin sub-priority, sweep-only setting, and so on, to make dupes simply fill up a nea...

The guys are loving working on the island! The office staff in Brisbane are extremely jealous of the photos coming through to us. A few of the team's favourites so far are: Swimming at Emily Bay; The views from Anson Bay ; And the T-bone steak from the ...
